Through the Eyes of Millennials: Reshaping Healthcare’s Future

Paul Crnkovich, Managing Director, Kaufman Hall
Dan Clarin, Senior Vice President, Kaufman Hall
Learning Objectives

Learning Objective 1
Describe the primary forces driving changing consumer expectations among millennials.

Learning Objective 2
Connect research into the core needs, expectations, and attitudes of millennials in their approach to healthcare (including how they differ from previous generations), and how that information should apply to organizational strategies moving forward.

Learning Objective 3
Identify key steps that legacy healthcare organizations can take to better understand, and begin to address millennials’ healthcare needs and expectations within the communities they serve.
Three Key Questions

- Who are Millennials and why should healthcare providers care?
- What have we learned about Millennials’ healthcare activities and behavior?
- What must healthcare providers do to win?
Who Are Millennials and Why Should Healthcare Providers Care?
Millennials Are Now the Largest Population Cohort

The generations defined:

- Millennials born 1981-96
- Generation Z born 1997-2012
- Generation X born 1965-80
- Boomers born 1946-64
- Silent born 1928-45

As they age, their healthcare needs will expand

Millennial Decision Making About Healthcare Is Influenced by Their Formative Years

- The Great Recession
  - Cost conscious
  - Experience over “stuff”
  - Willing to compare and shop for healthcare

- Technological Innovation
  - Digital native
  - Technology has enabled greater access and focus on health and wellness information

- Social Networking
  - More social/online influence
  - Less brand loyal

We need to understand them if we want their business
At a Macro Level, What They Want Is Pretty Simple

What Have We Learned About Millennials’ Healthcare Activities and Behavior?
Millennials Are No Longer “The Future”
We Need to Walk in the Consumer’s Shoes

The “experience” begins with the first Google search.
Kaufman Hall National Consumer Survey

Objectives and Methodology

Three national consumer surveys, Queried over 6,000 individuals

Objectives by Survey

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Survey</th>
<th>Objective</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Parents</td>
<td>Quantify expectations, preferences, and behaviors of parents as they make healthcare decisions for their children, with a particular focus on access</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Access</td>
<td>Understand consumer preferences for accessing care; Quantify differences between millennials and other age cohorts’ views on access</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Healthcare Shopping</td>
<td>Assess shopping incentives and activation in current healthcare market; Understand which services are most often shopped and the role of cost in the decision-making process</td>
</tr>

“Digital Natives” Trust Innovative Tech Companies to Help with Healthcare

Would use a mobile app developed by Amazon, Apple, or Google to help find and select healthcare services

Would trust to develop the best online tool to help them find and select the right healthcare services

Consumers Under Age 44 Believe That Various Vital Aspects of Healthcare Access, Such as Telehealth, Are Inconvenient

How strongly do you agree or disagree with the following statements about being able to easily access healthcare services?

(N=1,133)

I can easily have a video visit for basic healthcare needs:

- Disagree: 47%
- Neither Agree Nor Disagree: 23%
- Agree: 30%

Most Millennials Will Wait No More Than a Day to See a PCP; Urgent Care and Virtual Visits Are Seen as Ready Alternatives

How long of a wait for your primary care doctor to see you for a minor injury or illness (e.g. cut, sprain, cough, fever) would cause you to choose another option? (N=346)

Takeaway: Consumers sometimes wait more than a day, and oftentimes 2 days, when they could be seen on-demand through virtual visits or urgent care settings.
Question: What are the top 3 factors when deciding where to obtain service?

Consumers Under Age 44 Exhibit High Shopping Activity For Key Outpatient Services

The term “Consumer Shopping Activation” (CSA) is used to define consumers with out-of-pocket expenses who demonstrated a history of researching cost for multiple providers.

So What Have We Learned?

| Parents | • Millennial parents don’t believe that non-traditional options for care are accessible enough
| | • The “search” and “scheduling” portions of the journey generate the most pain points
| | • Millennial parents are not satisfied with long wait times to see specialists |
| Access | • While not yet widely available, millennials are seeking online scheduling
| | • Millennials choose alternatives if traditional options don’t meet needs
| | • Video visits are still not viewed as easy and accessible |
| Healthcare Decision-Making | • Millennials trust tech companies vs. incumbents
| | • “Shoppable” services are being increasingly shopped by millennials
| | • Brand and reputation can be important for serious needs |

Getting “There”: Pick and Stick on a Few Things that Matter

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>WHAT</th>
<th>WHY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| One Inpatient Service | • Grow Your Core
• Reinforces Desired Overall Brand Image |
| First Touch Access Points (e.g. ED, Urgent Care) | • High Visibility and Frequency
• Creates the “Wow, This is Different” Reaction |
| “Ambulatory” | • Rapidly Expanding Consumer Expectations for Convenience and Service
• Innovative Competitors Targeting “Shoppable” Services |
Delighting Millennials Will Drive Overall Performance on Critical Metrics

“Metrics that Matter”

- New Patient Growth
- Increased Patient Loyalty and Retention
- Superior “Net Promoter Score”
Closing Remarks

- Millennials are no longer “the future”
- Expectations for access and experience are high
- “Shopping” and seeking alternatives is commonplace
- Roadmap: Access, Experience, Pricing and Infrastructure
- Plan for your consumers of now and the next 15 years, not your consumers of the last 15 years
